Main Street Monday!

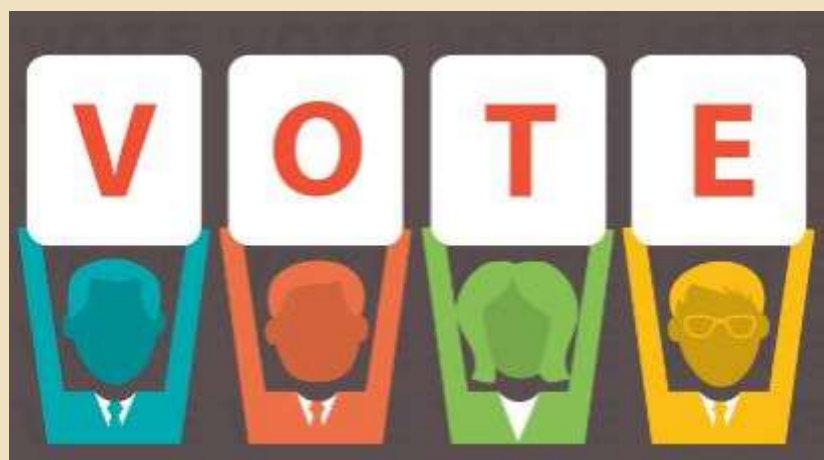

It's time to get ready for Small Business Saturday!!

Did you remember to set your clock back?

The sun is still rising and setting at the same time, only the clocks move.

Tomorrow is election day in Kentucky. Respect your right to vote! It's a privilege that many people in the world don't have. Let your voice be heard and honor those who made it possible for us to have this privilege.

Kristin Smith, Williamsburg native, co-owner and executive chef at the Wrigley, has a simple but fierce philosophy:

“Every small town deserves a restaurant they can take pride in, with high-quality food grown by local farmers.

Towns that don’t are missing our Appalachian history of expressing ourselves through preparing a from-scratch meal.” She also believes in promoting relationships through food. “If I can push someone’s boundaries through food ... we [become] unified through a taste that doesn’t revolve around politics, just flavor.”

We agree with Kristin! Kentucky food is just one more thing that provides an authentic experience in our communities and who doesn’t love to eat!

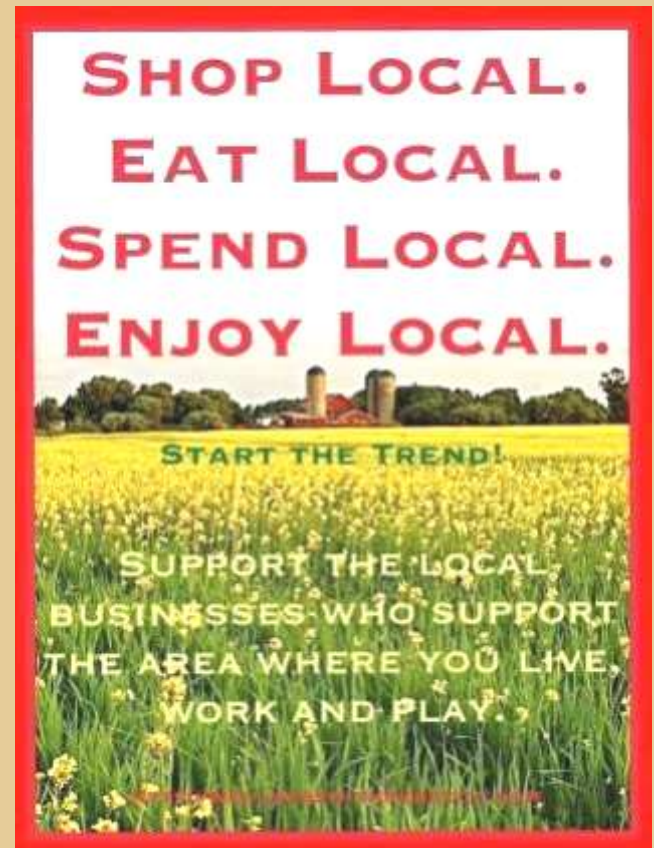

Speaking of food, don’t forget, Jason Smith will be cooking up a storm Thursday evening, November 7th in Cynthiana to celebrate the upcoming holiday season! Lord Honey, if you haven’t already, get your ticket by going to Cynthiana Main Street Facebook page and sign up ! Bourbon, Bacon, and Butter, what could be better than that?

Here is a beautiful fall shot of downtown Danville that was found on the Heart of Danville FB page. Street trees certainly make a difference.

You can see them on the street in Murray also ↗

ANTIQUE VERSUS VINTAGE
Antique is used to refer to items that are at least older than 100 years	Vintage is used to refer to items that are older than 20 years
Refers to items that are centuries old	Refers to items that are decades old
Do not usually state the year	Usually come with the year
Used to describe art, furniture, decorative objectives, jewelry, etc.	Used to describe clothes, jewelry, vehicles, etc.

Many of you have antiques and vintage shops in your downtowns, so what's the difference? Glad to know I'm just vintage and not yet an antique 😊

Murray, Kentucky, the home of Murray State University, has been named one of the nation's top 50 safest college towns. This is according to finds from SafeWise, a safety-focused research firm.

The firm looked at violent crime rates in college towns to determine those with the lowest rates. Murray Ranked 38th on the list with a crime rate of 1.35 crimes per 1,000 people and was Kentucky's only city in the top 50.

"We are extremely pleased to receive this recognition as one of America's safest college towns," said Murray State President Dr. Bob Jackson. "The health, safety and well-being of our students is of utmost importance. This recognition, along with our 2019 national rankings for top quality academics and as one of America's best college values, makes Murray State University one of the most attractive choices for a high-quality, high-value education."

"Their safety and well-being is of paramount importance to us, said City of Murray Mayor Bob Rogers. "We realize that a lot of students reside off-campus and we want to be sure that they're safe where they live, as well as when they travel to and from campus."

Murray State University Police Department and Center for Adult and Regional Education were named first in the nation for campus safety initiatives, both receiving the 2018 Department of the Year award from Safe Campus.

It was a sold out crowd at the Bell Theatre in Pineville Saturday night as Beattyville native Ian Noe took the stage. Ian is on track to be the next Tyler Childers. Most exciting was that 5 different Main Street organizations were represented in the theatre. Beattyville director, Teresa Mays, introduced Ian for the event host, Pineville Main Street.

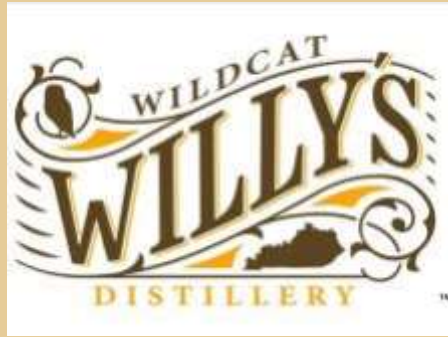

Also in attendance were director and board members from Middlesboro Main Street, Pikeville Main St. board chair, and board members of Downtown London. It is great to see all of the directors working together, networking and supporting each others events and local businesses, while hearing great music!

We are excited to see Scottsville receiving money to repair 8 city streets!

We loved seeing all the photos from the Main Street Halloween activities, but this one from Williamsburg is one of our favorites!

Coming soon to downtown Winchester!

Main Street Winchester is so pleased to be able to introduce our farm-to-table Chef, Jock Gurnee (pictured on left) and our farm-to-table Farmer, Makenzie Allen (pictured on right) to you all!

These two have been working hard to get the Distillery and Restaurant open as soon as possible! Jock has been tasked with local procurement of protein and Makenzie has taken over the high tunnel fall garden. We are flush with cabbage and turnips right now and can't wait to see what Chef Jock turns them into!

KYMS will be on the road this week.

Tuesday out of the office.

Wednesday—FOKYMS mtg. Perryville

Thursday - Inez and possibly Salyersville

Friday— In the office, but visiting with UK Historic Preservation students, and attending the African American Commission Mtg.
